Claims Our Town Wants Bridge Free

"About four years ago a bridge was built over the Monongahela river between Donora and Webster which cost Washington and Westmbreland counties over $200,000.

Now an agitation has begun for the erection of another bridge across the Monongahela at the upper end of Donora to connect that town with Monessen.

The proposed bridge is estimated to cost $200,000 to $300,000.

In connection with this project the Monessen Board of Trade is advocating the purchase of the bridge over the river at Lock No. 4 by Washington and Westmoreland counties.

It is said that bonds have been issued on this bridge for about $250,000 and how much its owners will want for it, no one knows.

As the present bonded debt of Washington county is $1,971,000 and the two per cent. debt limit is only $2,295,674.36, it looks as though it would take all of the $424,674.36, which is the difference between these figures to build the bridge at Belle Vernon. Brownsville and Donora and buy the Lock No. 4 bridge.

Meanwhile roads estimated to cost $1,238,522.50 have been appropriated by the grand jury and the court.

Just how the commissioners expect to get the money to make all these improvements the taxpayers are not informed.

Unless the people vote a big county bond issue some of the confiding folks who were promised brick roads will get gold bricks instead.—Washington Observer.

The above item from the Washington Observer is very misleading. The Monessen Board of Trade never endorsed any proposition for the freeing of the Lock 4 bridge. A committee of Charleroi citizens waited on the local organization to such a purpose, but their petition was refused, as we had in mind the improvements of some roads leading out of the town and were about to ask the county to make an appropriation for such work. Monessen is well satisfied with the Lock 4 bridge, toll bridge and the next movement is to get the bridge to Donora But it must be remembered that the Donora-Monessen bridge issue dates way back before the structure was built. at Webster and the agitation has only been revived lately.

PEOPLE WANT COUNCIL TO QUIT QUIBBLING

The council meeting which was supposed to have taken place last night to clear up the municipal tangle was a disappointment to the many citizens who had assembled to personally witness the proceedings. After caucausing until the hour of nine o'clock, the body assembled and after reading the minutes of the last previous meeting, a motion was made to adjourn until next Tuesday night. There may be method in such actions but people will be very slow to understand it and there is every desire from the public that petty squabbling come to an end.

MONESSEN PEOPLE ON GOOD ROADS JOB

"Monessen people are surely on the job for good roads leading to the busy town, a delegation representing the board of trade already having interviewed the new board of commissioners on the subject. In Monessen they don't get cold feet, and believe in the old adage, "Keeping everlastingly at it brings success." —West Newton Times-Sun. You're right, brother, it's necessary to be on the job if you want to succeed.

January Clearances now in order; come in and see how much you can save at A. R. Ney Co.

The Luna

The Luna tonight has as a special attraction for its patrons "The Modern Rip's most interesting film for one and all. The big film of the show however, will be 'The Revenue Officer and the Girl." This is a picture that has more to it than a plot. The scenery and the educational value alone are worth seeing. The battle between the posse and the moonshiners and the making of the whiskey among the fastnesses of the Blue mountains are some of the many features.

One of the greatest pictures ever produced is "Vanity Fair" which will be shown at the Luna theater on Monday afternoon and evening. The cast in the production of the 3 reels amounts up to a fortune in scenery and costumes and every part is portrayed by an artist. The alluring ways of Becky Sharp and the bashful manners of Joe Sedley furnish the beginning to plot that in the end has a climax that is not soon forgotten.

Star Theatre

As a special attraction the management of the Star theatre offers to its patrons, the Brahm girls in an excellent musical act called "An Evening at Home," These four young ladies have something new to offer in the way of music and it is well worth hearing

Cliff B. Nelson, the Jolly Jester, in a monologue act and Ward and Ray in a refined singing and talking act, complete the bill. See the latest photo plays as shown on our glass curtain.

MONESSEN HAS LONG LIST OF MARRIAGEABLE MEN---A FEW "LEFTOVERS" SUGGESTED

Hello! girls, we're into leap year. Are you on? It has been the custom of this paper every four years to give the bachelors a writeup and sort of help the girls long. This year we are a few days late on account of moving, but we now take our pen in hand to let you know. With the assistance of this paper, leap year in 1908 was a great success locally. There was much popping done and also much accepting and in looking over the files of the paper many worthy sisters took down pretty nice game by just being a little bold.

For general information we will enumerate a few who were in our list four years ago and who now belong to the benedicts. There's Doc Kreger, John Irwin, C. L. Schuck, Jim White, Charley Light, Adolph Homann, D. S. Muckley et ul. Of course there are few left overs from our list of 1908, but that is always to be expected. Take a sack of potatoes, there are always a few bad ones, that is they look bad on the surface, but when you carve them, they are just as appetizing as the smoother articles.

Left over we have U. S. Smiley, the big chief over at the Tin Plate works, who would make one of the most companionable men we know of. Smiley likes home comforts and there is not a man in town more deserving of a good wife. From what we hear of him, he would be hanging around a wife all the time. Then, too, he is a mighty interesing chap for he reads much, thinks deep and never jumps at conclusions, if he had jumped a little more, he might have been married today. Frequently he has been asked why he never married and his reply is "well, the right one hasn't come around yet." Now when a fellow will make a remark like that, you can set it down, girls, that he hasn't made up his mind to be a confirmed bach, Mr. Smiley is not so set in his ways that some nice girl coulon't make him fry the pan cakes in the morning and if necessary walk the floor at night. There are other good qualities about United States that we could touch upon, but we must pass on in order to get through with the "leftovers." today.

There's Fred Speers. Now you might smile, girls, but look out. Fred has been written up and talked about probably more than any bachelor in town, but really he's getting busy and Fred isn't as old as he looks either. It's nothing more nor less than carrying those blamed packages back and forth that has waged him. Why, we knew Fred before he started at that job and he was as young and frisky as a Jersey calf. Now girls, marry him and stop him from working so hard and there is no reaason why he can't be preserved for years to come and you won't need to pickle him either. He has been going out of late, attending the theatre and other social function and he doesn't go unaccompanied" if you observe. Fred Speers is an upright fellow, good morals and a hard worker and he has a disposition that is worthy the heart of any true woman and you can't make him mad, everybody of course, will know that after they read this article. He may get a little cross at the writer for the time being, but we'll slip down and give him a package to take to the city and he'll come back with that broad smile that comes clear from the soul and now girls, you may know how easy it will be to "cheer him up" when he is "dejected" or down in the mouth. Hand him a piece of pie and he will plant a soul kiss where it most belongs.

There's C. S. Pore, another charming "leftover." Charley is the

JURORS SELECTED FOR COMING TERM

The jurors from this city who are to serve the approaching six weeks term of court are Joseph Landers, Thomas Reanev, Jack Hussey, Stephen Helzlsouer, William Peers, Edward Winwood, Sr., G. R. Eddy, John A. Sheetz, Oscar Albert, George Sherwin, Samuel Conway, Matthew Peiffer, J. A. Madigan, J. E. Pittman, W. J. Snyder and Milson Cooper, of McMahan. None of these are on the grand jury but are distributed throughout the entire six weeks on the Traverse and Common Pleas courts.

CAPACITY AUDIENCE WILL SEE "MADAME X"

The local management of the Opera House begs to announce among his early bookings he has been fortunate enough to secure the famous play of "Madame X" with the original production, same as seen at the New Amsterdam and Lyric Theatres New York, where it ran for over two years. "Madame X" is heralded as the greatest drama of the age, the supreme drama of Mother Love and will be presented in our city on Thursday Jan. 18 at the Opera House an early booking of seats should be made as the mail orders are very heavy and a capacity audience will surely greet this noted company.

The Bijou

The biggest hit of the day in military circles is 'Sergeant White's Peril," which will be shown at the Bijou theatre today only. The press, the critics and the National Board of Censorship recommend this picture is one of the best. There will be two other reels in addition including "The Actor's Heart," a Pathe drama of that intense variety that interest never lags.

Brotherhood Class Is Tendered Banquet

An enjoyable event in church circles was the banquet Thursday evening in the first floor of the Christian church, tendered the Brotherhood class of young men, of which Mr. J. E. Newcomer is the teacher. Some time ago the official board of the church offered this class a banquet if they would increase their number to sixty and keep it at that for two consecutive Sabbaths. As this class was always a band of workers, with this added stimulus, they went to work and now the class numbers more than eighty, with an average attendance each Sabbath of more than sixty, and the greater majority of them are members of the church.

This organization of young men is the largest of its kind in the town, and we believe in western Pennsylvania, and the good which comes from their efforts cannot be estimated and they certainly are an inspiring body of workers. The young men met in the church auditorium where some time was spent in singing until they were called to the banquet hall, where an elaborate supper was spread, consisting of fried chicken and all the good things that go with it. Prayer was offered, after which the meal was thoroughly enjoyed.

J. E. Newcomer was master of ceremonies, which position he very ably filled, calling on several guests for remarks The speakers were J. L. Saum, Dr. D. F. Rosen, Rev. Howard Cramblett, of McKeesport, William Foster, ex-president of the class, Wilbur Sibbett, the present president, Mrs. James Patton, Mrs. J. E. Newcomer, Mr. Hotz, first vice president, F. L. Arnold, D R. Rogers and Rev. Thomas N. Hughes, pastor of the church. Each in turn had some word of encouragement for the boys and their teacher, which was greatly appreciated. The affair was closed by song and a prayer by F. C. Phillips, and everyone of the seventy five pres-

Only daily paper published in Westmoreland county in the upper section of the Monongahela valley.

A Connecticut expert declares a man can live for years as if dead. It didn't take an expert to tell us that there are lots of deads in Monessen moving on as if living.

Sugar has had its inning and now it is announced that shoes are to go up. Its all right for silk stockings to be kept up but blamed if shoes had any right to climb.

At least there is one man who has not heard of William Jennings Bryan and it is suggested that he would make a good clean juror and about the only man fully competent.

We like the man who will stand up and make a fight for what he believes to be right. He may be wrong but his ability to fight for principle is worth something.

Constant Croaking

"You're damned if you do and the same if you don't" is an old saying but most emphatically applicable to at least one member of the present board of county commissioners. The minority man on the board Mr George Brechbill captured seventeen of the twenty six appointments made by the board. The average man would consider Mr. Brechbill pretty much of a captor but the Greensburg Argus says: "The action of Mr. Brechbill meets with universal condemnation for his betrayal of the confidence of those who elected him."

The Argus has been an anti-Shields paper opposing his election with the most distorted eloquence possible, claiming that he was unfit to represent the people in office, of course the arguments were not considered very seriously for most people knew that the attitude of the paper was purely selfish for the reason that it got none of the patronage of the Sheriffs office under the Shields administration. It was thought however that after the people had spoken the papers would see they were in wrong. But you can't teach an old dog new tricks and the Argus keeps harping.

But how about Mr. Brechbills position in reference to the Argus. He voted against Shields on every thing and he did this possibly to please such inveterate cranks and such short sighted creatures as reason along with the Argus. If his position in voting against Shields displeases the Shields enemies how would he vote to please them is the question a great many people will ask.

If the newspapers of the county, friendly and unfriendly will see the good things the board of commissioners do and help them along with the big job ahead of them, Westmoreland county will stand better along side of other counties and the taxpayers will get better representation. It is wise for everybody to recognize Messers. Shields. Reamer and Brechbill as the county commissioners and deal with them as such. It must also be born in mind that every man on that board owes the constituency of Westmoreland county something. The election is over now and people want results. It is not wise for one commissioner to ignore another or for any two to make up slates. Slates are soon broken and every man on the board was elected the same, by the vote of the poeple and now gentlemen down with factional lines. break the slates and get down to business and the people will help make the administration a success.

YOUNG BEAVER'S DAY'S WORK

Record Made by One of the Animals in Regent's Park Gardens, London.

A young beaver in Regent's Park gardens, London, was once placed at work upon a tree 12 feet long and 2 feet 6 inches thick just as the town clocks sounded the hour of noon The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground.

That done he attacked the wood. He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he ate his supper of bread and carrots and paddled about in his pond until half-past 5 o'clock

Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground he portioned it out mentally and again began to gnaw.

He worked at intervals all night, cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter The work done, he took a bath.—Harper's Weekly.

A Cooking Feat in the Air.

To cook a potato pie at the top of a chimney three hundred feet high by means of the heat generated in the fires below would seem an impossible task, yet such a feat was on one occasion accomplished by Joan Faulkner, a famous Lancashire steeplejack.

The incident was the outcome of a wager between Faulkner and the manager of a Manchester gas works, who doubted John's statement regarding the excessive heat.

A large iron kettle was procured, and this, being filled with necessary ingredients—sixty-six pounds in weight—was hoisted to the summit of the huge chimney stack. Faulkner placed the receptacle on the outer and coolest side of the brickwork, but despite this, the contents were found to be thoroughly cooked in one hour and twenty minutes, or ten minutes less than the stipiated time.

Faulkner won his wager and the pie, which, it is said, was slightly burned at the bottom, was afterwards distributed among the poor of the district.—Bystander.

The Useful Verb "To Get."

There is no word, long or short, in the English language capable of performing so much labor in a clear, intelligible sense as the verb to get; and here is an old-time specimen of its capabilities:

"I got on horseback within ten minutes after after I got your letter. When I got to Canterbury I got a chaise for town; but I got wet through before I got to Canterbury and I have got such a cold as I shall not be able to get rid of in a hurry. I got to the treasury about noon, but first of all I got shaved and dressed. I soon got into the secret of getting a memorial before the board, but I could not get an answer then; however, I got intelligence from the messenger that I should most likely get one the next morning. As soon as I got back to my inn I got my supper. When I got up in the morning I got my breakfast and then got myself dressed that I might get out in time to get an answer to my memorial. As soon as I got it I got into the first chaise and got to Canterbury by 3 o'clock, and about tea time I got home."

Her Choice of Methods

Mrs. Briggs had passed the afternoon at her club, where she had listened to a dear young girl, direct from the chautauqua platform, deliver an inspiring, uplifting discourse on the benefits of moral suasion.

Therefore, when she arrived home and was met at the door with a tale of woe relating to the behavior of her only offspring—of his refusal to go to school, his stealing all the doughnuts the cook had hidden for supper, his unforgivable rudeness to his maiden aunt and his taking his father's fishing tackle from its sacred box and mixing the contents together on the parlor floor—of all these and sundry other misdemeanors, each sufficient to merit a physical reproof, she bit her lip nervously and asked where she might find her son.

Having found him in the laundry, where he was prepared to spend the night in case of necessity, she led him gently up to her room, asking not to be disturbed by any one whatsoever.

"Son," she said, sorrowfully. "I've been told that you were very naughty today"

"Do I get licked?" asked son, irrelevantly

"You realize, don't you, that you were naughty?" she repeated, ignoring his question.

"Then I don't get licked?" Son was anxious to know.

"Listen to mother, dear." Son winced at the endearment. "You are my only boy, and I feel so proud to own you. But—" She drew him closer to her and endeavored to lift him to her lap

"Gee I ain't a baby," he objected, strenuously, as he wriggled away.

Mrs. Briggs breathed a deep sigh. Then she began again: "Mother is proud of her boy, but she wants him to deserve her pride You want mother to always be proud of you, don't you?"

"Say, you've got powder all over one side of your nose," exclaimed the object of her pride.

She wiped her face quietly, then she waited a moment to collect her wits. Her son didn't seem to respond to mother love, so she thought that perhaps she would better try something else.

"When you refused to go to school today dear, you knew, didn't you, that even if I didn't find it out even if your teacher didn't send a note home to me, your conscience disapproved of your actions? Your conscience was sorry that you weren't trustworthy"

"Teacher wouldn't have sent a note home, because they haven't got us fixed in our own rooms yet, and they don't know where we belong," son objected.

But never mind what your teacher does, son Think of your own better nature, to which you have done an injustice"

Son made no comment Encouraged, his mother proceeded.

"You knew it was wrong, too, to take Mary's doughnuts, didn't you? And you are sorry, aren't you, that you offended your Aunt Alice?"

Still no comment.

"Son, are you listening? Son!"

He turned toward her Huh?" he asked. Then his eyes were again directed out of the window. She followed his gaze, and saw behind the lilac bushes, where they felt that they were free from public eyes, Mary and her husband-to-be bidding each other a tender farewell Son saw his mother's eyes taking in the scene

"Say!" he remarked. "What do you know about that!" He nodded his head sagely "I've seen them doing that 'most every day, but I never told, for I wanted something to hold over her, when she started to tell on me. Going to fire her?"

Mrs. Briggs exclaimed gently that it was perfectly proper for Mary to kiss her future husband Then she drew the shade, that no further interference from outside should prolong their conference.

"Now, son," she began again, as she drew him firmly toward her, "mother wants you to say that you are very sorry and to promise her—"

"Aw, son ain't my name," broke in the boy, crossly "An' you ain't 'mother'—you're ma. An' you're talkin' like the teacher does, 'cause she dasn't lick us. What's the matter?"

"George," called Mrs. Briggs to her husband, whose steps she heard descending the stairs. "Come here and deal with this impudent young one. He needs a good whipping, if ever any boy did!" As her husband entered the room she added, to insure good measure. "He's ruined your fishing tackle—you'd better use your slipper on him."

A Good Demonstrator.

The car had wheezed slowly along, until finally Jobleigh grew impatient.

"Look here, my good man," he said to the demonstrator, 'I don't want an old snail of a car like this. I want some speed."

"But just think of the economy of a car like this," said the demonstrator.

"Economy?" retorted Jobleigh. "Where does the economy come in? It costs just as much as run as any other car, doesn't it?"

"Yes," replied the demonstrator, "but think of what you'll save on fines."—Harper's Weekly.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Monessen Readers Can no Longer Doubt the Evidence

This Monessen citizen testified long ago.
Told of quick relief —of lasting benefit.
The facts are now confirmed.
Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive. It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Burns Wadsworth, 270 Donner avenue, Monessen, Pa., says: "I was in poor health for some time and suffered almost constantly from backache. I was subject to chills and dizzy spells. Knowing that Doan's Kidney Pills were good for kidney complaint, I procured a supply from the Hirsch Drug Co. Their use helped me from the first and before long I was cured. I am now enjoying good health and my kidneys do not bother me in the least" (From statement given Oct 2, 1907.)

A PERMANENT CURE

Mrs. Wadsworth was interviewed on Nov. 9, 1909 and she said: "The cure effected by Doan's Kidney Pills in my case has been permanent. I have recommended this remedy to my friends on several occasions and all who have used it, speak highly of the results received.

"Dorothy has never had any one to play with except her father and me, and she doesn't know how to play with children of her own age. A more angelic child never breathed and Dick is eager to see what a bit of well directed spice will do for her. He always has felt that she should have been born a boy, you know. So come soon."

It was with timid obedience to her parents' urgent directions that Dorothy, aged four, went forward two weeks later and gravely gave her Cousin Harold a welcoming kiss, saying in slow and awestruck tones: "You can play with my toys and the attic is all ready."

"Well, come on!" shouted Harold. Then, pulling her ruthlessly by the hand, he started up the broad stairway for the stories above.

"The dears!" chimed the mothers in unison. Then the two settled down to discuss the various merits of their offspring, wondering how soon they might be called upon to explain to Dorothy just what it was that Harold meant by his boyish actions

But there was no sudden summons to the attic. Two hours later they crept upstairs to call the children to luncheon and to note Dorothy's progress.

Harold was directing operations with the air of a general Dorothy sat near by, her angelic eyes blazing with excitement, shearing wildly her best doll's hair About her lay several dolls of various sizes, mercilessly barbered, and on the floor were strewn the curls that had once graced the bisque heads.

It was not this sight that made her mother start forward with a cry of terror and catch up her child in a fever of amazement Dorothy's curls had evidently been the first to fall. They lay intermingled with the tang'ed floss upon the floor.

"He's been teaching me to play, mother," cried Dorothy as she struggled free "We're barbers, and he cut off my hair like his and we've cut the dolls' hair, too, when they had any."

During luncheon both children were gravely admonished and though restless to a marked degree they promised solemnly not to use the scissors and not to throw anything—Harold having suggested an imitation of an apartment building fire that he had witnessed where all the furniture had been thrown from the upper floors. Further, they promised not to pound anything, and not to paint anything but their own paint books.

Then with a sigh from Dorothy's mother and a tender smooth to Dorothy's shorn head the children were allowed to seek their own amusement once more.

Harold doesn't mean to be destructive," his mother said sadly, but a bit proudly as well "And he does obey. We can trust them now that they have our restrictions to go by. It is his inventive genius for something new to do He never played barber before in his life It must have been because his father had his hair trimmed while I was buying my new hat yesterday—a perfect dream, Marion! A most extravagant willow plume and a few gold rose buds—"

"But such an investment, dear!" answered her sister "Mme Renova has used my white plume, dyed green, on a high small toque"

With that the subject of fashions was launched for the afternoon.

Some hours later, because of the silence in the attic, they went in search of the cherubs. They were not in the attic, nor in the nursery nor yet in mother's room. But there they found evidences of pilfering that sent terror to the mothers' hearts and set them to calling loudly for their darlings. Dorothy had rifled her mother's hat box. The tissue paper coverings and the box lid were strewn about, but the hat was gone.

From the guest room the cherubs answered eagerly and innocently

"We're playing milliner's shop," called Dorothy's high treble, an eerie gleam in her usually soft eyes. "Harold knows such lots of plays and I'm learning like you said to. And we're going to stuff some dolls' pillows with these"

On the bed lay the two hats, shorn of all that had made them models of the season's most perfect designs. Upright on each stood a single wiry stick from which all the fibers of a once lovely plume had been stripped. On the white counterpane lay a heaped up mass of green and rose.

"It's some like excelsior, only softer," shouted Harold, "and in pillows it will be fine."

Then, seeing the tragedy that lay in his mother's eyes, he scrambled to her side, saying eagerly: "We didn't cut or throw or pound or paint, mother—"

The rest was drowned in the slamming door on the retiring figures of Dorothy and Dorothy's mother.

Simple Enough.

"I don't know how to make conversation when in society."

"It's simple enough. When you're with automobile people you talk automobile, and when you're with bridge people you talk bridge."

MUSIC AS CURATIVE AGENT

Singing Teaches Correct Breathing and Lively Waltzes Have Good Effects on Melancholia Patients.

Two English physicians of prominence have recently asserted that the exercise given to the lungs in singing is valuable in the prevention and cure of diseases of those organs. They consider that increased professional recognition should be extended to this special therapeutic agency, as advisable in cases where pulmonary consumption is feared.

Singing involves correct nasal breathing, and this means that the air admitted to the lungs is practically germ free, and also the adequate development of the upper portions of the respiratory passages. Another effect is the maintenance of the elasticity and proper expansion of the chest The necessary breathing exercises mean increased functional activity of the lungs. Then, there is the improved oxygenation of the blood, which singing necessarily promotes.

As we know, most singers and also those musicians who perform on wind instruments are a healthy looking lot. Not many years from now music will be recognized as a most valuable curative agent, especially in cases of insanity or morbidity. What tired, overwrought, distressed man or woman does not know the value of music How many beautiful stories could be told of the power of music to sustain and restrain?

One of the greatest scientists living has testified that he was once kept from thoughts of despair and suicide by suddenly hearing in the next house someone playing Rubenstein's Melody in F.

In the Croydon Mental hospital, London, waltz music—particularly the bright, musical comedy pieces—is used in effecting a cure for melancholia patients.

WOMAN'S LONG BUGGY RIDE

Mrs. Sarah Conner With Four Children Drives 900 Miles in Six Weeks.

A strenuous overland journey has just been completed by Mrs Sarah Conner and her four small children, who after a trip in a dilapidated buggy of 900 miles have arrived at Wheeler, S D., their destination.

A span of ponies were hitched to a single seated top buggy which contained the mother and her four children, one a girl of eleven, a boy of nine, a girl of seven and a baby of eighteen months. In the old buggy were piled the worldly possessions of the family.

The journey required six weeks' time. Some days they were unable to travel more than fifteen miles. The two older children and part of the time three of them walked while the mother drove. The ponies had only such grazing as they could find along the road and were without grain the entire trip. They were exhausted at the end of the journey.—Sioux Falls correspondence, Minneapolis Journal.

Real Angel of Death.

Most of us are familiar with the beautiful and artistic conception of French, wherein a young sculptor who is plying his magic chisel upon a block of stone and summoning from the snowy depths of the marble the dream face of his soul's idea, is gently touched by the wistful-eyed Angel of Death and the skillful arm forever stayed. The whole creation is marvelously beautiful and the world is better for its birth. Nevertheless, it is allegorical and misleading.

The real Angel of Death in the case of the thin-faced sculptor was not a sad-visaged maiden of classical profile In all probability it was a minute, rod-like organism floating amid motes of dust and known to scientists as the "bacteria tuberculosis." The writer does not want to be a shatterer of ideals, but the sooner such poetic notions of death are done away with and the mass of the people educated in a common sense way to the dangers of dust and bacteria, the better it will be for humanity in general.—J. G. Ogden in October Popular Mechanics.

MONESSEN HAS BIG LIST OF MARRIAGEABLE MEN

same all the time, sweet and good natured. He'll have his own way, though, but what does that matter to a woman anyway, if a fellow is a good provider and Charley would carry every cent of his earnings home and place it in his wife's bureau drawer, even though she protested. He would buy her candy and all the pretty little "nicnacs" that all the females crave. Charley likes dainties and it has been prophesed that when he does get a wife, she will have to be a dainty one. Way back some time ago he went to a fortune teller and she happened to be one of these "transe" mediums. Well she went into a trance and revealed his future and past life and gave him some information which has always made him rather conservative in the selection of a few. She said "go slow Charley" and Charley has been going slow ever since, but he declares he is still in the race and according to Ed. Frye, the postmaster, he doesn't misrepresent one bit. Ed. says he got a Christmas bundle from out east some place and the postage alone was twenty six cents. This is inside information and Mr. Frye will oblige you not to say anything about it. Charley still sells hardware, tinware and coal.

Girls, Dalls McCabe. We had him in our midst four years ago and in looking over our files we find Dallas' reason for not marrying at that time was "too little." But if reports are true, he has grown a mighty sight since then. He is out "among em" now and the police tell us nearly every night he goes courting and when a fellow does that, you can bet all the gravy and molasses you ever expect to own that he's in love and mighty deep. There is a sort of a silent understanding among the bachelors of town that they will go home at 11 o'clock. You see the bachelors of Monessen are organized and the way they find out when one is in love is when he breaks over, and one of the loyal bunch told the writer that Dallas has broken over, which corresponds with the story the police tell. Dallas would make a good husband and to the best of our knowledge there is just one thing that might stand in the way of happiness between the right girl and Dallas, should she pop and be accepted. Of late he has taken a peculiar fondness for aerial navigation and if Dallas ever gets to flying, he might not come down in time for supper and if there is one thing above another that makes a woman mad it is for hubby to come home late to meals. This, girls, we put you next too, without extra charge and aside from this dangerous pastime, Dallas is all right. He is a fiend for water so he might help wash the dishes. Girls get after him, but you better apply one at a time.

Going over the list we find Tommy Dunlevy, who has been eligible for lo, these many years. A fellow sometimes fools away his young days, but Tom declares he has gone far enough and he is going to stop at the brink. Every woman, above all things, should choose a sober husband and one that wouldn't swear if he mashed his finger. Tommy says he has a girl, but that doesn't mean much and don t stay back on that account for he has been flirting for several years past and it is just like Tommy to mean business and if he does, there is a good chance. To offer a personal description of Tommy we would place him in the blond type, prominent features and passably good looking. He has a smile that creeps across his face unconscously and makes him attractive at the time. Tom ought to make a swell catch for if he is ever going to settle down, he will do it now. Girls, now is the crusical moment.

Rube Watkins, Oh girls, how can you stay away? Rube, with feet on him like an elephant and a strong right arm, he is a protector. He would be all that mortal man could be if he had a lovable companion, one to soothe him in times of trouble and disappointment. Just now he is busy sowing a little wild oats, but he has it about all sewed and he is going to settle down one of these days and make the finest kind of a man. Rube isn't one of those chaps that goes around the town with a grouch on. Quite the contrary he carries an affable smile that ought to win any girl. Here is a case of standing off and looking on. Rube Watkins would have been married four years ago if any girl had had nerve enough to walk up to him and say "Ruben, will you be mine?" He is one of that sort that just couldn't refuse and he would walk right along. He has often declared that he wants a little bit of a wife, one that weighs anywhere from 85 to 100 pounds, and we put you next to the kind that ought to seek his heart and hand for he has declared over and over again that if he has to have a big wife, he will go without, opposites attract, you know. His papa, the squire, has just been re-elected for five years and he would help furnish the house the first time.

Closing the list for today, we refer with pride to our esteemed and prosperous real estate man, Eli Wolf. Eli is not as old as he appears but he should have been married these several years. He has been making frequent trips to Youngstown, but rumor do say that he has not popped the question as yet. Eli is a good singer, in fact he is a whole choir himself, he owns an automobile and has plenty of time to run it between sales. Now girls, if that Youngstown deal doesn't go through, set your cap for Eli, for he can make you a good living and as long as he is associated with Joe Newcomer, there is no danger of him going wrong, for Joe is keeping more boys straight than any one man in town. Tomorrow we will name a few more and any suggestions along this line will be gladly welcomed by the matrimonal editor and in a later issue we may name some nice ladies of a marriageable age.

TAKE TOO BIG CHANCES

Why is it that men and women will never learn that overwork and nervous strain will certainly ruin health. Every day the papers tell of the dreadful results of overtaxing one's strength, yet the others keep right on without profiting by the lesson.

Henry Jacobs of Ninth avenue, N. Y., went through this experience and now writes in a letter: "I was in bad health for two years, very nervous and weak, no appetite, could not sleep well and had no ambition or energy. I was getting worse all the time.

"But since I began taking Vinol there is a wonderful difference. I have gained 14 pounds in less than two months, have splendid appetite and can enjoy my meals. My nerves are strong and I sleep soundly. I simply feel fine now, which shows what Vinol did for me."

Our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, will do as much for all other run down, worn out people, if they will only give it a chance. There is no risk for we give back the money if Vinol fails to satisfy you Eirsch Drug Store Monessen Pa.

Financier Insists on Rest.

There is a celebrated financier in Wall street who can never be got between three and four o'clock of any fine, warm, sunny autumn afternoon He will not even see more celebrated financiers then The great public is told that he is "very busy" But to intimates there is no secret about it.

Regular callers ask for Mr. So and So and then watch the office boys One listens at the private office door. Another listens at the telephone board. "Can you hear him?" asks the boy at the door. "He's not stirring" "Yes, I hear him," replies the office boy at the switchboard. "He's still snoring. It's very clear today."

The financier sleeps in the sun which pours through a great window His bed is a long couch Near it is a telephone with receiver down.

Before he sleeps he takes off his boots. When the office boys hear him bustling around to put on his boots they know that in a few minutes callers may get their names sent in.

Wall Colors and Light.

In painting or papering the walls of a room the question often arises what color reflects the most and what the least light? Recent experiments in Germany gave the following results: Dark blue reflects 6½ per cent. of the light falling upon it; dark green, about 10 per cent.; pale red, a little more than 10 per cent.; dark yellow, 20 per cent.; pale blue, 30 per cent.; pale yellow, 40 per cent.; pale green, 46½ per cent.; pale orange, nearly 55 per cent.; pale white, 70 per cent. Glossiness and varnish increase the amount of light reflected.—Harper's Weekly.
